

A COMPLETE VIEW OF YOUR HEALTH—BEYOND INDIVIDUAL REPORTS

EPHR

Understanding Your Health — Beyond Reports

Most health reports are designed to detect disease. But what about understanding your health before something goes wrong?

Many people are told their results are “normal,” yet they don’t feel their best.

This is because traditional reports often evaluate individual markers—rather than how the body functions as a whole.

*Health is not a set of isolated numbers.
It is a connected system.*

Why Traditional Health Reports Fall Short?

- Results are viewed in isolation
- “Normal ranges” don’t always reflect optimal health
- Early imbalances are often missed
- There is limited insight into root causes
- Most approaches are reactive, not preventive

This leaves many individuals without clear answers—especially when symptoms persist despite “normal” reports.

A More Complete Way to Understand Health

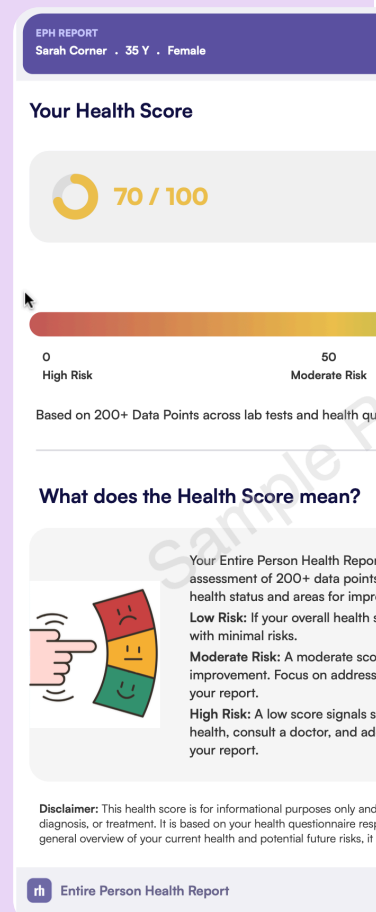

EPHR (Entire Person Health Record) is designed to provide a comprehensive, system-level understanding of your health. Instead of focusing on individual values, EPHR connects multiple biological signals to give you a structured and meaningful picture of how your body is functioning.

What is an Entire Person Health Record?

EPHR is a structured health assessment that:

- Evaluates your body as an integrated system
- Identifies patterns across multiple biomarkers
- Highlights early imbalances
- Supports preventive and proactive care

It is not just a diagnostic report—it is a tool for understanding, guiding, and improving health over time.

A structured path to whole-body insight.

01

Biomarker Assessment

Key health indicators are measured through a detailed panel

02

System-Level Analysis

Data is grouped into core physiological systems

03
